Spy Probe

Under ground rules worked out in Washington, U.S. officials who went to Israel last week to investigate the Jonathan Pollard spy case have been allowed to inspect the secret documents allegedly stolen by Pollard. But sources close to the probe say Israel will make every effort not to return the documents until after Pollard's trial. The U.S. team has been permitted to question the Israelis only about what occurred in the United States, not about who gave what orders in Israel. And their attorney has been allowed to object to inquiries outside these bounds.

A Warning

With tensions mounting between France and Libya over threatened new Libyan incursions in Chad, U.S. intelligence officials believe Muammar Kaddafi is plotting a wave of violence against French targets. The Federal Aviation Administration has warned French authorities that Libyan-backed terrorists may be planning attacks on Paris's two major airports—Charles de Gaulle and Orly. Senior State Department officials report that Kaddafi is also aiding insurgent groups on France's Caribbean islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique, and in French Guiana. Kaddafi is "seeking out the vilest life forms" in the area to foment trouble, says one U.S. official.
